EDC announces new officers and board members for 2010

ST. CHARLES COUNTY, MO --- The Economic Development Center (EDC) of St. Charles County is proud to announce their newly elected officers for 2010, new additions to their board, and to recognize outgoing board members.

EDC officers for 2010 include Chairman – Dr. John McGuire, president of St. Charles Community College; Vice Chairman – Keith Schneider, vice president of Colliers Turley Martin Tucker; Treasurer – Dennis Zimmer, vice president of First State Bank; and Secretary – Michael Spurgeon, director of administration for the city of St. Charles.

Newly installed board members include Dr. Jim Evans, president of Lindenwood University; Karl Ruhmann, vice president of SCI Engineering; Sandy Stokes, city administrator for the city of Foristell and Mary Lu Sanders – Zinser, attorney with the Intellectual Property Law Center.

Outgoing board members include Tom Engle, executive director of Duckett Creek Sanitary District; Bill Green, chairman of SCI Engineering and Darrell Roegner, president of the St. Louis market for Premier Bank. All three served on the EDC for more than a decade and two of them had previously been chairperson: Roegner (1993 to 1997) and Engle (2005 to 2007).

“We want to recognize the invaluable contributions that our outgoing members --- Tom Engle, Bill Green, and Darrell Roegner --- have made to the EDC board and to the growth and development of St. Charles County,” said EDC President and CEO Greg Prestemon. “Their wisdom and leadership have left an indelible legacy of success and vision for our organization and our community.”

EDC officials said another board member soon to be installed will be Keith Riesberg, the new city administrator for the city of O’Fallon.

Established in 1990 as a public-private initiative, the EDC serves as the lead economic development organization promoting planned growth and community excellence for all of St. Charles County. For more information, visit www.edcsc.com or call 636-441-6880.
